EDITORIAL

We give glory to God for gradually restoring peace and normalcy into the whole world in light of Coronavirus (Covid-19) that ravages and disrupts the year 2020. Researchers globally have returned to work and continue with their research and the outcomes of some of their research is what Ilorin Varsity International Journal of Library and Information Science anchors on to enable the publication of these two combined editions which is volume 4, issue 1 and 2.

The first article in the journal by foreign authors, Gladness Richard and P. Jain focused on the challenges facing records management: A case study of Botswana Examinations Council records management unit. The article detailed the activities involved in the management of records at the council and the challenges they encounter and how the challenges can be surmounted. The next article in this edition by Olaronke O. Fagbola, Taiwo Adedigba and Priscilla Agbetuyi focused on the work-life balance and organisational commitment of librarians in Kwara State, Nigeria. This is followed by Nafisa Rabiu and Folorunso O. O's article which focused on online information search skills among University of Ilorin postgraduate students. Following this is the article that examined the influence of job satisfaction on records management effectiveness in registries of Federal Universities in South-West, Nigeria by Ailakhu, Ugonna V. Other articles in this edition are the ones by Oluyinka Titilope Afolayan which examined antecedents of knowledge sharing behaviour and intentions of students at the University of Ilorin, Nigeria; awareness of and Web 3.0 competencies among librarians in universities in Osun State, Nigeria by Jacob, Priscilla Ayooluwa; Idris Ibrahim Saleh; and Adesina Oladimeji Adegoke; and assessment of the of organisational culture and services delivery in selected public libraries in Kwara State by Aliyu Mahmud; Akinboro, E.O and Nuhu, S.R. The article in the edition by Mahammuod, Sulyman Olaitan and James, Bukola Olutola focused on the influence of motivation on performance of para-professional staff in two selected academic libraries in Kwara State, Nigeria. Okiki, Olatokunbo Christopher and Ikuejurojo Adebanjo examined financial literacy and financial preparedness of librarians and library officers towards retirement: A survey of academic libraries in Southwest Nigeria; students use and satisfaction with reprographic services at Delta State University library was examined Achugbue I. Edwin; while the last articles adoption and use of open educational resources (oer) in distance learning centres of two Nigerian universities was examined by Abdulmumin Isah, Ganiyu Ojo Adigun, Mulikat Yetunde Abdulkareen and Shakirah Oyindamola Afolabi.

Permit to state it clearly that, these are well-researched report, very interesting and educating. Therefore, I invite our readers to come along and review the articles.
